

An aerial photograph showing a construction site. A pink line outlines a large area. Inside this area, there is a large pile of grey material (possibly gravel or crushed stone) in the center-left. To the right of this pile, there is a dirt road or path. Further to the right, there is a large pile of brown material (possibly soil or sand). In the bottom-left corner of the pink-outlined area, there are several small, colorful objects (possibly containers or equipment). The surrounding area is covered in dense green forest. In the top-left corner, there is a large pile of white material (possibly snow or crushed stone).
